SYNOPSIS—Cloudy showery weather is general over most of B.C. today as the Pacific storm moves into the interior of the province. Rainfall from the storm was particularly heavy. In two days of rain on the west coast of Vancouver Island between two and one-half inches of rain fell while along the lower mainland, Vancouver reported a 24-hour rainfall of one and one-tenth inches. The air following the storm is very moist and cloudy weather is expected to persist into tomorrow in most sections of the province.

Those Municipal Budgets

BY THE CITY COUNCIL'S ACTION this week, Victoria has established the highest mill rate in its history. In doing so it has paralleled the upward course of tax rates in adjoining munici-palities, all of which are above the figpanties, all of which are above the fig-ures set last year.

One simple fact stands out. Tax-payers will have to pay more to their respective municipal exchequers. Also apparent to anyone who has read the debates on estimates in the different districts is the fact that in virtually all cases, the taxes will bring them less in actual work done. This condition arises from the general increase in education costs and upward-revision of wages and salaries in some instances.

Victoria presents a good example.

Last year the tax rate was 52 mills. Added this year was a sum equivalent to 4.5 mills in school cost increases and 5 mills in higher wages. Together, had works projects and services remained at their 1950 level, they would have pushed the rate up to 61.5 mills. Instead the figure has been held down to 55. That means just one thing. A sum equivalent to 6.5 mills has been chopped from estimates for projects which, if not essential, were at least desirable.

Analogous conditions, with obvious relative differences, apply to other mu-

What the councils of Greater Victoria have done, despite the fact that their rates are higher than last year, reflects an actual cut in municipal undertakings. That is what the Federal Government wanted. One phase of Ottawa policy is only to lessen the combined junior government tax load, but to reduce the competitive bidding for scarce materials. School costs and wage increases between them have prevented extension of ma-terial relief to the taxpayers, but munici-pal councils have, by careful pruning, at least minimized the extra burden on the class under their jurisdiction.

The wounds of municipal pruning knives may not be immediately apparent. They will become more noticeable as the year progresses. Reductions in public works votes will make it impossible to do everything desirable in maintenance, alone expansion. The people of Greater Victoria will probably find more holes in their streets next winter. When the respective councils encounter requests for assistance for a number of worthy objectives, they cannot be generous.

Under world conditions now existing, there can be little quarrel with the policy that has been adopted. National security has first priority. It should be said, moreover, that the degree of austerity inflicted on municipalities will still per mit a degree of luxury unknown in many

At the same time, the fact should At the same time, the fact should be faced that municipal budgeting this year will not meet all requirements. It could not be otherwise. The money, materials and manpower are needed for a bigger job which can be ignored only at the risk of jeopardizing all municipal

Another Liberal Victory

DESPITE THE CLOSENESS OF counts in several individual contests and the relatively small percentage dif ference in what is equivalent to the popular vote, Prince Edward Island Lib-erals retained their one-sided majority in last Thursday's election.

According to tabulations made by The Canadian Press, the Government of Pre mier J. Walter Jones, which won 25 seats, has the support of 51.5 per cent of the voters, against the 46.1 per cent accorded the Progressive Conservative opposition. Admittedly the House representation does not reflect that division of opinion. The Progressive Conservatives have one member less than they did at dissolution, dropping from six to five. Under the conventional electoral system the popular vote counts only indirectly in the apportionment of seats. A majority of one is sufficient to win, and at all events, the Liberals have proved their right to represent more than half the Significant is the poor showing of the C.C.F., whose candidates lost their de-posits. Their percentage of the equivalent of the popular vote was merely 2.4. It would appear that in the island prov-ince, as in other parts of Canada, the appeal of socialism has little hold on the imagination of the people. Prince Ed-ward Island provides further evidence of a trend already proved by the dim-inished strength of the Labor Party in Britain and at the last elections in Australia and New Zealand.

There may be some substance to the statement made by the Prince Edward Island C.C.F. president, Douglas Mac-Farlane, that the vote received by the party's candidates is "highly encouraging"—but not for the C.C.F.

The Men Who Hunted Beaver

FEW OTHER THAN FASHION EXb perts, furriers and trappers will be deeply concerned over the decline of the beaver's popularity. Pelts of that animal represented only 15 per cent of animal represented only is per cent of tur values a year or two ago. It is worth noting, however, that the news service story reporting its waning appeal, gave the beaver full credit for the part it played in the exploration and development of early Canada.

As a national symbol, its position is assured. Yet it may occur to Canadians of today that other values of an earlier time have depreciated with the beaver. The early fur traders who pushed westward and northward across unknown lands help sharp trading instincts—too sharp if the story of liquor for Indians is recalled. But they were able to exist not because of shrewd native business.

Survival for them was won through self-reliance. Canadians can still be self-reliant when the demand is made on them. Domestic critics are prone to point out, however, that the inclination of the day seems too often to avoid the need for showing self-The more popular watchword

That may be explained in the evolution of more civilized living. It does not, on the other hand, justify a decline in self-reliance—the kind that broke fresh trails in the wilderness. The beaver is entitled to his fair share of credit for making Canada. But let's not forget the men who sought the beaver—men who blazed the trails of a nation. And let's remember their essential self-reliance. That, too, is a symbol of Canada—one we cannot afford to ignore.

Chips Off The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

Vancouver Art Gallery the other day there was an exhibition called Twenty-one Modern British Paint-ers. It was organized by the British Council "to show good examples of some aspects of modern British painting.

Every painting in the show is said to be an important work. And I dare say it is, one way or another. Most of the pictures by men with important names, such as Henry Moore, Wyndham Lewis, John Piper, Ben Nicholson, Matthew Smith, Stan-ley Spencer, Graham Sutherland, and Barbara Hepworth.

But when I dropped in, to steep myself in importance, the things that seemed important to me could hardly have been the things that seemed important to the painters, the Gal-lery, the British Council, and the lery, the British Council, admiring crowds and purchasers. Most important of all to me was the realiza-tion that most "modern" painting is made up of confusion. You will say, if you admire modern art, that the con-fusion is entirely within myself. If I understood such things, all would become plain to me, and all the nastiness would then fill me with a queer delight.

PERSONALLY, I feel that to be de lighted by nastiness is a confusion in itself. And to pretend to be delighted, as a matter of fashion and snobbery, is also a confusion. But the confusion in the beholder is as nothing compared to the confusion on the canvas, and in the painter's mind.

I have it on the authority of Dr Lafora, a Spanish psychiatrist who has Latora, a Spanish psychiatrist who has studied such things, that modern painters fall into two classes. The few really original ones are mad. The rest are simply imitating the madmen, and are only mad in the sense that it is rather crazy to pretend you are insane . . . by pretending to be a thing long enough you do become the thing itself, in some

NOW Dr. Lafora was not just working off some ignorant and malicious spleen. He has studied both art and insanity, and studies insanity by means of art; he prefers to have his patients drawing and painting as much as they possibly can. So he knows the symptoms he is looking at in a Picasso. He does not deny that many of Picasso's works are full of art and skill, and that all of them are full of interest. But he does say that Picasso is partly off his sometimes brilliant chump. He also says that many of his patients, quite untaught in art, have turned out highly artistic

IF the poetry of sane men is often beaten hollow by the poetry of madmen (as was pointed out long ago by Plato or Aristotle or somebody), there is no reason why the music or painting of madmen shouldn't sometimes be superior also. But there is no reason why the work of imitation madmen should be any good . . . chaps who imitate the symptoms without sharing in the benealts of the disease. Inspiration is usually a silly word, but in the case of artistic lunatics it is a useful one. And the fake lunatic has no share of the genuine lunatic's imagination. You can have a great sane painter and a great one, but I deny with all my that you can have a great one who is a psychiatric fraud . . . which is what nearly all modern painters attempt to be. The lack of sincerity alone is enough to

A NOTHER thing that seemed important to me was to realize that much art which claims to be brand new is simply a revival of a very old-fashioned and inartistic thing.

As I left the Gallery I was filled with a great depression to think of the deadly ness of everyone trying to be "dif-t" in much the same way. The more we try to be new and startling and important, the more we get stale, expected, and piffling. Sure, it made us jump the first time to hear black was white. But now everyone says it.

Being A Chronicle Of Our Times

MONDAY, 23rd Roused early by my pheasant's gabble, took an egg on toast but forsook my coffee on the advice of a chirurgien, who says 'tis abrasive to me diet. At my place of business, was shocked to learn of the death of David Porter, a splendid, quiet Scot whose daily smile was a tonick to my spirits. Repaired anon to a government office for a test of my ability to drive a carriage a most sensible strategem and thank God! I knock'd nobody down in the doing of it, as is my wont. After lunch, took my rest in the hope t'would defeat the touch of salmonella which plagues my gizzard. Anon to the hotel to discourse of affairs with Master Max Bell, he peel ing from southern suns but cheerful and giving a solemn undertaking not to take off before he lands. Early home and to bed, to read an account of the wars by General Omar Bradley, very harsh on the British generals and very lenient with the American, which surpriseth me, for I regard him an impartial and just sol-dier, very sensible of tongue. In veriest truth, wars produce a great diversity among biographers, who can no more agree on a single battle than two civilions describing the clash of an ox-team and a plow horse.

TUESDAY, 24th-To the hotel for TUESDAY, 24th—To the hotel for breakfast with Sir Ray Milner of Edmonton and Qualicum Beach, a man of renown in politicks, law and affairs. We both drank tea, Sir Ray proclaiming that hotels know not how to brew decent coffee, a sentiment which I find forthright. By carriage up Douglas Street. right. By carriage up Douglas Street to examine a new place of business, where newspapers will be publish'd, and said to be the custody of brilliant men, which we will apprise anon. At my office, was sore distressed to learn of the passing of a neighbor, Mrs. Rob Roy McGregor, a fine woman of infinite kindness and cheerful disposition. My lunch was meagre but enough. Later, strolled betimes in my garden, admiring the deft handiwork of Mr. Wong, an amiable Chinese, and listened while children skipped rope and sang their lilting sing-of business, where came calling Jack Milledge, behind a vast bow tie and hair cropp'd by sheep-shears, to discourse amiably of a plan whereby boys and girls would be educated in the noble sport of tennis. Vastly fatigued, home for a turbot of salmon and an early escape to my rest.

WEDNESDAY, 25th—Up mighty merry and to my kitchen but found my cupboards bare, whereupon I basted my wife, poor wretch, for her defections. Breakfasted wanly on toast and thin tea, and departed in a choler for my place of business. By and by came Master Wightman in a pleasant worsted the color of almond ice cream, reporting that his wife, poor wretch, was down with 'flu, for which she has my sympathy. There-after, chatted with Brian Tobin, he suntanned from a week's vacation and much labor on a new house, much of which he is building-with his own hands, more's the praise. On foot through sunny streets to my club, and at a window table found Master Hutchison lunching with Dick Murray, a young Ottawa diplomat, very handsome with this genial weather on his brow. My afternoon rest was disturbed by the arrival of a tonick, costing nigh unto £2, and at that price my health should improve forthwith. Early to bed listening to a playlet called "The Fat Man," very sinister and foolish, withal a soothing way to find sleep.

THURSDAY, 26th-This day dawned fine, the 28th such without showres. At my office, found great exhilaration in the voice of Master Ted Clark, announcing an aluminum industry of vast estate, which will bring much commerce to these shores. Fell to the signing of a dozen letters, my correspondence having been sluggish of late. Thence by carriage to my club with Frank Doherty, and heard a most amusing discourse by Master Art Anderson, he assuming the role of a Swedish sociologist, and nar-rating how his mother, 'ere he was born, tripp't over a pile of gramophone rec-ords. "But," he protesteth, "it didn't affect me, affect me, affect me, affect nan, and greatly touch'd by the many man, and greatly touch a by the many fine old friends who gathered to do him honor. Then to Beacon Hill Park, to admire the panorama of Olympic peaks, blue skies and placid waters for a reflective half-hour. Later, to Government House, and found His Honor in excellent spirits, and fine as hands could make him, playing tost to directors of Powell River Paper Company, men of govern-ment, banking and affairs. Chatted betimes with Harold Foley, he resplendent in a blue suiting with white carnation: Jimmy Lawson, a most admirable bar-rister from across the water; Logan May-hew, wearing a bow tie of polka dots; Bill Brooks, Hubert Wallace, Russell Ker, Ernie Carson, John Cates, Allan William-son, Norman English and many others, all delighted that their meeting in this city attracted 600 stockholders, against 200 in Vancouver. Thence home for a piece of steak, which my wife does very well, and more tonick which, the Lord be praised, has no taste. Thus comfortably to gentle repose.

FRIDAY, 27th-Our skies wore a December face this morn, bringing nour-ishing rains much beseeched by gardeners, farmers and others indifferent to recording of sunshine. My breakfast was a poached egg, more than half devoured by my girl, but I could not bring myself to baste her for the taking of Strolling, much admired the blossom of Japanese plum on rue Rockland. At my office anon came John Rhodes Sturdy, a writer of merit, for an amiable coze. By carriage to the Chamber of Commerce board, where some talk of reviving a water service 'twixt Sidney and the mainland; and an interesting appeal by merchants of Bellingham, who would allow Canadians £2 of purchases in short visits, without tax or duty. Through the streets with Master Ches-nut, he discoursing of Monday's symphony and the playing of Beethoven's Ninth, a brave venture designed to balance the orchestra's accounts, and I pray God they make it. ## Everybody Criticizes The Tax Structure But Nobody Comes Up With A Better One

By MICHAEL BARKWAY, Corre

MANY members of Parliament came back from the Easter recess with a conviction that the high cost-of-living was the one thing which was really disturbing their constitu-overnment is actually driving them up. There have also been a good many com-plaints from all sides of the House about the tax of 15 per cent on washing ma-chines, refrigerators and stoves.

The complaints, of course, are easy to make, and there is greater interest to make, and there is greater interest in the alternative proposals, such as they are, which have been made for raising money to finance the defence effort. Members from all sides, from government as well as Opposition seats, have said liquor should be taxed before washing machines.

The official answer is that every increase in liquor taxes upsets and dis-turbs the provinces. Mr. Frost of Ontario is quoted by government spokesmen as having urged the federal govern: ment preferably to get out of liquor taxes altogether, and at least not to increase them. Whatever the rights and wrongs of this, no one seriously suggests that increased liquor taxes could have come near to bridging the gap in the national accounts.

The C.C.F., of course, has its everready solution: increased corporation taxes and an excess profits tax.

FAMILIAR ARGUMENTS The arguments against this are familiar, and the Conservatives have not advocated it. They are left in the position of opposing Mr. Abbott's new taxes without proposing any alternatives, but they justify this on two grounds. First, they say that the government's non-defence expenditures could be cut by hundreds of millions; and second, that Mr. Abbott's estimates are so far out that he doesn't really need any new taxes. On the first count, the weakness of the Conservative argument is that they have never produced a list of items which they would cut. They talk about exthey would cut. They talk about ex-travagance in publicity services, in purchases of land and various other direc-tions, but it rarely gets specific enough to carry complete conviction.

On the second count, they have at least the record of the five last years to show that Mr. Abbott has consistently underestimated his revenues. In every year from 1945-50 he has ended up with a much larger surplus than he forecast, and the national debt has been reduced by $2,000 millions as a result.

The objection to this, as Mr. George Drew puts it, is not that the debt should be reduced but that it should be done by stealth. He accuses Mr. Abbott of berately underestimating his revenues so that he gets a surplus without telling people that that's what he's doing.

From the point of view of Mr. Abbott and his financial advisers this accusa-tion gives them credit for far more than human foresight. In every one of the post-war years, they can say, economic activity has far exceeded the expectations. If the finance minister, in any March since 1945, had dared to plan his budget on the expectation of what actu-ally happened, he would have been called extremely rash. The premises of this year's calcula-tions have been stated. Mr. Abbott is tions have been stated. Mr. Abbott is assuming that the gross national product will reach $20 billions, a 12 per cent increase over 1950. He is assuming a price rise of about 7 per cent. Now if the gross national product goes above $20 billions, or if prices rise more than 7 per cent, taxes will yield more than is now estimated. But the cautious advisers in the finance department don't think they the finance department don't think they should bet on higher levels than they have assumed. Some of the more cau tious of them actually fear that existing estimates may be a little optimistic.

MR. ANEURIN BEVAN and Mr. Harold Wilson have made a hot and open political issue of questions which have been quietly and rather languidly dis-cussed for many months. They have been defence mobilization.

It is the coctrine that the United States can rearm on a large scale in the next three years and at the end of that period, with only comparatively small and passing shortages, have in addition to its military power a "production for normal civilian purposes" which is "higher than before Korea."

Among America's allies there has been a growing fear that this prodigious result could be achieved only by our taking up, at their expense, an undue proportion of the raw materials of which the supply cannot be increased quickly. They saw us committing ourselves and promising ourselves that in three years we would have the most powerful mili-

it also an even higher standard of living. Their fears crystallized when they read Mr. Wilson's report to the president on April 1, the report which is called "Building America's Might." That report, which was such agreeable reading in the U.S., caused a shudder of appre-hension—as more and more people heard about it-in Britain and on the continent. I heard one extremely friendly foreigner say: "that is not guns and butter... that is guns and the cow."

Rightly or wrongly—and I am afraid more rightly than wrongly—the Wilson report has been read abroad as being an Information has reached these premises about the Wattled Starling, a bird of Africa, and the fact that one of its traits has become of vast interest to researchers in alopecia, or baldness. Mr. Bevan and Mr. Harold Wilson have staked their political futures, their claim to the leadership of the Labor party and to high office, on the belief that "the American government and people have got to choose," as Mr. Wilson put it in his speech to the House, "between their partners' defence program on the one hand and their own stockpiling and the level of their own unrestricted civil consumption on the

They are saying in effect that they do not believe that the American program—rearmament plus a higher standard of life—can be carried out in America without forcing Britain to choose between rearmament and the maintenance of an already low standard maintenance of an already low standard of life. Mr. Bevan and Mr. Wilson might be wrong. It is possible that we shall control our own inflationary suction on the world's raw materials, and that we shall restrict and allocate and arrange things so that Britain can rearm, as things so that Britain can rearm, as we are rearming, without tears. But, as politicians who hope to win power on a popular issue, Messrs. Bevan and Wilson are betting that there is not going to be enough statesmanship in Washington and in London to master this problem.

Surprised At Criticism Of. Hospital Plan

TRAIL (CP) — Premier Johnson told the B.C. Women's Liberal Association annual convention here Friday night he was mable to understand the abuse heaped on the B.C. government following the recent increase in hospital insurance premiums and inauguration of co-insurance.

He was sure the people of the province wanted what he termed "one of the greatest steps forward in the history of social wel-fare" and if they wanted it they had to pay for it. Hospital administration had cost $17,000,000 in 1948 and $22,-000,000 in 1950, and that $5,000, 000 difference had to be made up somewhere. Since inception of B.C.H.I.S., 450,000 accounts had been covered, at a cost of $35,000,000.

He referred "doubters" to hospital boards and dared them to ask for comparisons between hospital conditions of a few years ago and now.

Beaches Not Closed To Victorians

There is no reason why certain beaches in and around Victoria should be overcrowded during the summer months while others, equally suited for outdoor rec-reation, should be barren, B.C. government officials said today after a "disclosure" that many of them are blocked.

The fact that some of the smaller beaches, some distance from the city, have no proper roadways leading to them is no reason for swimmers and sun bathers to consider them closed, they added.

The B.C. Land Registry Act provides that all waterfront property should allow road allow ences at reasonable intervals to permit public access to the shore. While it is conceded few of these allowances have ever been developed, legal authorities point out that just as long as they exist on the maps in the land registry office, the public is fully entitled to use them.

of all Victoria clubs, Uplands is now the most active. A check of the membership proves the point well.

Naturally during the course of our travels we ran into several well-known figures. One of these was Eric Hibberson.

Hibberson is a lad of more than 20 summers who could be if he had the inclination-one of the top flight amateurs in British Columbia. But Eric looks to the almighty dollar.

A pet salesman by trade (his place of business is on Fort Street) Eric can't see his way clear to engage in the forthcoming B.C. Amateur at Shaughnessy the May 24 week-end.

This must be construed as a sessimistic attitude of the first degree, for Eric in a practice round one day this week shot a 33 on the first nine at Uplands. Now for those knowing Uplands, a 33 on the first nine is not to be sneezed at. It equals any record that the his-torical file of the club can di-

But in passing out the acco lades one should not forget the performance of Mrs. Edna Harris of Colwood Club.

Mrs. Harris (wife of the city administration's Tommy Harris) this week scored a hole in one Colwood's seventh hole. Lightning only strikes once in the same place the saying goes but Mrs. Harris doesn't believe such proverbs.

The reason for Mrs. Harris' disbelief in the accepted fashion of things pertaining to divots stems from the fact that this same Mrs. Harris last year scored an ace-and she scored it on the same seventh hole in exactly the same club competition. Mrs. Harris was so elated over her success that she refused to have her picture taken by a staff member from this news offering. "Modesty in all it's glory" is the way the frustrated cameraman scribed it.

story of Fred Manning. Fred it appears was the re cipient of a beautiful wristheart but still respecting his wife's thoughtfulness, Fred placed his watch in his pocket safekeeping when he took to the links this spring.

A wise move, thought Fred at the time, but not so wise as things turned out. It seemed that Fred was beset with ill-luck, for as he was engaging in his favorite sport on this par-ticular day an unfortunate accident occurred.

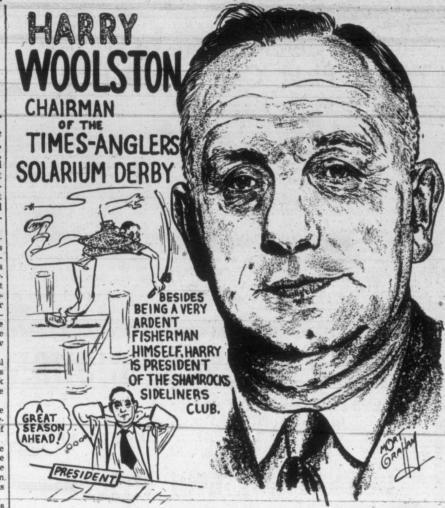

An errant tee shot found it way in the general direction of Mr. Manning, and before he could adjust himself to the situation the stem of the watch had been neatly detached from the body of the timepiece.

Then there's the tale of the Vancouver Island Match Play Open into which the semifinalists go on Sunday.

The Victoria District Golf Com mittee this year decided to run against hope that a professional wouldn't appear in the prize giving. This occurrence has not have yet become a reality but at the moment that same committee stands to go deep in the hole if a pro wins the tourney.

So the story goes—and this from hearsay — only five tickets have been purchased by Gorge Vale members in support of the tourney. At a buck a lege education to see the precament the city committee is

An ex-president of the Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association, and a salmon fisherman from 'way back, Harry Woolston sees nothing remarkable in combining his fishing activity with the presidency of the Shamrocks' Sideliners Club. He is a

"Someone is responsible for this," said Gorman testily, as he wiped the water from his chin while a military band dutifully fought its way through the stirring score of The Stars and Stripes Forever. "Someone will pay for this. That Weather Bureau is full of old-line Conservatives who delight in embarrassing the government. This is the type of political chicanery which one always must fight in a capital city. You may be sure that they haven't heard the last of this sorry business—I'll get my attorneys on the phone and we'll take the rapscallons through every court in the land."

It was approximately 45 minutes before the appointed time to "Play Ball" that a harrassed assistant galloped into Gorman's office and asked: "Do you think we'll be able to start the game?"

Set To Roll "Game? Game?" stormed Mr. Gorman, "to hell with the game—just get the customers into the park!"

The Real Eugene LeClair

Mr. Gorman, who is noted for his resilience, completely had regained his good humor by Thursday morning and was detying the Weather Bureau to produce another disastrous rainstorm. "The cowards," he sneered, "they know that I'm gunning for them." Gap On Bevos

Of course, Mr. Gorman is a veteran sports promoter who has survived countless minor debacles. There was the occasion when the imaginative managerial team of Slitkin and Slotkin persuaded Gorman to use one, Eugene Le-Clair, in a main-event on a boxing show at Montreal's Forum. Mr. Slitkin convinced Gorman that LeClair was the welterweight champion of Belgium.

On the morning of the bout, a knocker phoned Gorman and told him: "Those characters, Slitkin and Slotkin have muleted you. This egg who fights tonight isn't the real Eugene LeClair. I happen to know that the real Eugene LeClair fought last night in Providence, Rhode Island."

Indignantly, Gorman phoned Slitkin. "You rat," said Gorman, "You are giving me the nine of hearts. This fighter you have pawned off on me is a phoney—I know that the real Eugene LeClair fought last night in Providence."

Slitkin was shocked and wounded. "I am astounded that you should make such an accusation,"

Slitkin continued: "The real Eugene LeClair couldn't "Then," Slitkin continued: "The real Eugene LeClair couldn't have fought in Providence last night. I happen to know that the learn will practice at Beacor real Eugene LeClair died in Brussels seven years ago."

and read it quickly, silently.
"What on earth would Mr.
Dukes be writing about, Caroline -at this time of night. Is there anything amiss?'

Caroline was looking down at the folded paper with a curious expression of satisfaction. She did not seem to be troubled by it. she said presently. "There's nothing amiss. Nothing at all. Some people think, when you show them a little encouragement, that they're entitled to all sorts of favors."

Amelia well knew, from past experience, that there would be no point in questioning Caroline any further. As if to emphasize the fact, Caroline folded the letter into a narrow strip and held it above the lamp. It browned; began to smoke; caught fire. She held it until the flame had all but reached her now extended to her, somewhat unsteadily.

"Thief Thief!" shrieked Mrs. Yellow-tail.

They were not screaming at each other; not calling each other such an unpleasant name as that.

It was someone else whom they were calling a thief, someone at whom they kept darting down as if to strike with their stout yellow bills. But they never doing their fighting with their tongues, not with their bills. A lot of origination of their fighting that way. It isn't pleasant to other folks, but no one gets hurt.

"We found it first!" shrieked Mrs. Yellow'tail.

Bobby Coon's cousin made no reply. He stood up no his hind legs. He reached as high as he could, took hold of a stalk tightly with his black hands, pulled it over until it broke, then fore. How Mr. and Mrs. Yellow-Jail screamed then:

"If this is your corn come and get it," snarled he of the black mask and the ringed tail. "Why don't don't you?" he added.

There was a very good reason why they didn't, the very best of reasons—they were afraid to. They knew those black hands, and those shart teeth, tearing the husks of that ear of corn open could and would do the same to them if given a chance. They were careful not to give that chance. They contented themselves with flighting with their tongues, stopping now and then to themselves tear open an ear of corn a chance at a few of the white miliky grains, spoiling a whole ear for the little eaten, then doing the same to another ear.

So the silly quarrel continued as silly quarrels do, and all quarrels are silly, it ended only when the owner of the garden appeared with Farmer Brown's boy who had come to see that garden. Mr. and Mrs. Yellow-tail took to their wings and Bobby Coon's cousin took to his black heels. "You see now why we can't raise corn here," said the owner of it ruefully. Tommy did. Why.

If he had been where he could see down in among the stalks of growing corn above which Mr. and Mrs. Yellow-tail were flying back and forth as they screamed, and among which they darted out of sight for an instant every now and then, I am sure that for a moment at least he would have thought that somehow or other an old Green Forest friend of his had also come down to the Land-of-always-summer to spend the winter. There, looking up and growling and snarling at the two birds was, the living image of Bobby Coon. He wore a mask across his face, a black mask, just as Bobby does. I OOKING back over the seal an nost satisfying occupation if one is inclined to take a pride in community accomplishments. In spite of the cost-of-living index and taxes, this city's enterprises in the realm of fine arts have made steady progress.

Purveyors of entertainment of every sort have suffered headaches enlarged in ratio with the economic tre in d. Nevertheless, Victoria's major organizations in this realm are still swimming, if a bit, waterlogged financially. Aesthetically, they have soared well above previous levels.

has proved one heartening fact. Enough people value the orchestra highly enough to come to its rescue and insure its survival for an eleventh season.

Actually the whole community, not only the music-lovers, owe a debt of gratitude to these suporters. An orchestra like the Victoria Symphony-rated fourth of all Canaphony-rated fourth of all Canaphony-rated fourth of all Canaphony and the court of all canaphonies—is good business for a city. RECORD

Rossini intended Rosina in "The Barber of Seville" to be sung by a mezzo, not by a coloratura as she always is. He provided a charming aria for the lesson scene, yet all Rosinas interpolate. If only for the reason that it erases these longstanding defacements, a new and complete recording of The Barber has enormous merit (Cetra-Soria; three 12-inch L.Ps.)

The recording has also the merits of the sumptuous, flexible, acutely disciplined mezzo of Giulletta Simionato for its Rosina; the histrionically adept baritone of Gulseppe Taddei for its Figaro; the

VICTORIA TIMES MAGAZINE

According to a survey by the New York World-Telegram and Sun, the city's three major league baseball clubs have collected an unprecedented $1,620,000 in advance sales for the 1951 season.

At Yankee Stadium, Joe Marin says he received $850,000 from see son box and group plan customer before. Feb. 1.

In the office of the Giants, Pete Hoffman estimates the take at better than $400,000, while the Dodgers' Jack Collins places receipts at $570,000.

"The Giants made a great second-half run last season and have made thousands of customers be a lieve they have a good chance to win the pennant," Pete says. "However, this does not account for the fact that we have sold more than twice as many tickets as we ever before had disposed of nearing February.

"We have done business with some 2,000 applicants under three group plans—14 night games, the 77 season schedule and the 12 Sundays, Decoration Day, Labor Day and after-dark contests."

The incredible jump in advance sales by the Giants is noteworthy because it has some right on top of advances in prices.

JUBILEE FETE By N. deBERTRAND LUGRIN

EARLY VICTORIA HIGHLIGHT

THE JUBILEE celebration of 60 years a Queen was an outstanding event during our early days in Victoria. I suppose that was the very height of Britain's glory. We all felt that it was, and that the glory would never be dimmed, or the vastness of the Empire diminished.

rry Gosset, owner of Gossei's rea, a 28-alley affair in mid-i New York, says it as plainly can be said.

But perhaps Rudyard Kipling had misgivings. Certainly in his magnificent poem commemorating the above event, there is a note of prophecy which unhappily has, to a certain extent, been fulfilled.

"If they put any more taxes on the game, the customer will haye to pay the freight and that won't be good for bowling.

It seems to me that nothing has ever equalled the awe-inspiring sight of those fire engines, drawn by their proud steeds, roaring along in the crimson glow. I think, if I am not mistaken, the firemen held and waved flaming torches as. Yor them. Presently in the darkness, it must be dark for the proper would come, the horses loving it, holding their heads high, their eyes wild with the joy of it, some of them three abreast. Without loyalties civilization would perish, and now and then there comes a time when national loyalty stands pre-eminent, and when the head of the state becomes the figure to whom that loyalty is due. I suppose there has never been a queen more deeply and widely reverenced that Queen Victoria. She lived such a long time that she was more than a mere human being to us as we grew up. through.

We had all become disheartened and disgusted at the prolongation of the war in South Africa and we and some of our friends felt we must give relief to our feelings.

We decided to make an effigy of Paul Kruger and build a fire Out on Dallas Road we watched the flames leap skyward from a rocky eminence over the sea, and heart the roar of the beacon fire which was only one of the thousands life on the headdards round the world. That is the picture that must stand out in the memory of all who with easeed it. Not so much the other illuminations throughout the city, the triumphant music of the bands, the marching of the troops, but that fiery symbol on the rokes of the everlasting might of the Empire. The end of the Boer War and the discovery of gold in the Klondyke were other nation-shaking happenings at the end of the last century. I remember the day that the news of the Relief of Mafeking came demonstration.

I rather think he always felt sorry for Kruget, as he was invariably sympathetic with the underdog. At any rate, when he did come home, he brought with him the glorious news of Mateking, and of course we did not carry out Victoria went wild that night, and we were among the wildest. Grabbing any kind of national emblem we could find, we stuck them in our hats, draped them around us, waved them in our hands, one of us had a small picture of Queen Victoria which she held by its cord. With hundreds of other uninhibited Victorians we made our way to Beacon Hill Park which was the gathering place for most ceremonies, patriotic or otherwise. We told one another piously that we did not mean to set the effigy on fire, just perlaps to scoreh it a little. We went to work at the back of the pasture with some old clothes and suitable stuffing, intending to accomplish our purpose before father came home to dinner, as we knew quite well he would have no sympathy with any such VICTORIA WENT WILD

When we first went to Seattle and were quite outspoken about our ruler and the superiority of the British in general, we naturally anagonized some of our cousins who were rabled in their own loyalty to their adopted country. One day we had a terrible shock. We were in a shee store down town, when one of our relatives, seeing us, came in, and asked us if we had heard the news.

Some danced and formed serpen-tines and talked and laughed with total strangers. Of course the Fire Department would turn out too. It usually did, and it was one of the most thrilling sights to us. Horses drew engines, the host carts, the hook and ladder wagons. They were magnificent beasts. We would rush over to Yates Street to wait

HISS KITTO'S PRIVATE SCHOOL

However when, nearly 10 years later, Queen Victoria did pass away, the emetion that we children had felt previously was wide-spread. At the Miss Kitto's private school where the youngest members of our family went, and 30 or more other little girls, one of the older children was supposed to have fainted when the weeping principal told the sad news. All of the others, without exception, gave way to hysterical tears, and had to be given hot cocoa and marched home given hot cocoa and marched home pub stacked.

A BELOVED QUEEN

Nearly everyone in Victoria put on some sort of mourning, and, it being lovely spring weather with the gardens all in bloom, every woman, young and old, wore a bunch of purple violets.

I have a book of poems, so-called, published in Canada, in memory of the queen. It contains tributes by Canadian writers, and bears the following dedication: "To the memors of the Royal Family, in memory of their Illustrious Mother." I believe all of the contributors received acknowledgeyal Household. I have lost mine, t. Even long-lasting lipsticks, such as those recently developed by a well-known beauty firm, require a bit of time and care in application if you'd like to avoid pale and parched-looking lips.

Makers of this lipstick offer these rules for evading smeats. With either your lipstick or a lip brush, outline your mouth, making certain in advance that your libs are clean and dry. Fill in the out-line.

Regular use of this brittle nail cream will, they say, prevent breaking or splitting, will help strengthen the nails, and will aid in keeping, the cuticle smooth and manage. # OF SALT WATER, TWO FLOWERING PLANTS IN WORLD

By ROBERT CONNELL

WHILE we are enjoying the fresh tints of opening leaves and flowers it is perhaps not amiss to remember that there is more or less encircling us a world where our seasonal changes of the land are at least very much less marked and where a permanent beauty of color and form is characteristic. This is the world of salt water where our seasons are replaced by where our seasons are replaced by the tidal influences of the moon and where at our southern tip of Vancouver Island the changes of temperature between summer and winter is not more than about ten

In this world of saft water there are only to be found two flowering plants, both species of eeligrass, and both of them produce their blossoms in a very modest and unassuming way: enclosed in a transparent sheath. The vast majority of the sea's plants are without flowers, thus resembling the lichens and other lowly land MODEST AND UNASSUMING

But what the sea flora lacks in flowers it makes up in the color and form of its many species. Curiously enough it is the color that forms the basis of their scientific study, for they are divided into classes or divisions known by the Latin equivalents of red, olive-brown, green, and blue-green seaweeds. These color-names are applied to the parts most nearly corresponding in appearance to the pop.

In the deeper water about the rocks the red and purple species, most small in size but not infrequently very graceful in form, make their home.

Of course there are exceptions. Off the coast you see here and there dark patches which are avoided by boast. These are colonies of the large brown bladderkelp, specimens of which are so common on the beach at high-tide If you go down to one of our beaches, preferably a slightly rocky one, you may easily trace these colors at low tides. Nearest the shore or high-water mark you will find green seaweds such as the sea-lettuce and many small forms. Lower down, near and about the low-tide mark you will find dark mark where they have been washed up after breaking loose from the parent-colony.

They have an historical significance because it was on their floating forest-tops the sea-ofters were seen basking by the first exploiters of that animal. There are other large and conspicuous seaweeds of this brown group, specimens of which are more or less frequently washed up on our shores or seen floating in the off-shore water. WHERE SEA OTTERS BASKED

The making of a collection of seaweeds is both an interesting and an educative recreation. It leads to some interesting discoveries and to many surprises. I have heard it said that there are not many kinds of seaweed here, but that is what might be said of any natural history object by the inexperienced. Seaweeds when properly dried and mounted make delightful and persennially interesting objects. I have specimens collected and mounted a gentury ago and still in fine condition.

We may be excused for our curiosity to see how one poet" discovers' another. Masefield had been subscribing to a New York illustrated paper called Truth. The Mill." I bought the Christmas number of this American Truth, and read it through. It had in it, with some illustrations of phantasy, a longish narrative poem by Duncan Campbell Scott, called "The Piper of Arll." This was the first poem by a living writer to touch me to the quick. It was narrative it was delicate phantasy; it was about the sea and singing and a vomantic end. I did not know it at the time, but it was a choice example of the work of the romantic poets of that decade. Its longing, its wistfulness and the perfection of some of its images made deep impressions on me. I read it till I knew it by heart;

One of the most eccentric, and able, critics in England at the turn of the century was Clement Shorter, founder and editor of The Sphere. It seemed that Shorter liked to annoy people. He once published in the Sphere a poem by Thomas. Hardy which contained the word

"Some critics," he continues, asserted that Hardy had invented it. But they were wrong. Unshen' is a perfectly good word, with a record dating back to the 14th century, and it has been used effectively by both Keets and Browning. Its meaning, as given in the Oxford Dictionary, is 'uninjured, unharmed, unspolled." "unshent." "Nobody," writes Newman Flower in "just as it Happened," "had ever heard of such a word. The South African War was then reging, and this word 'unshent' caused as much commotion among the learned for a week or two as ald the battles. ... People started correspondence in the press about this wretched word."

Most readers will remember that John Bucah, in his mystery stories, wrote about South Africa and Virginia without first having visited these places. He was surprised, when he visited them, to find how accurate the information derived from reference books had been. Theodore. Bonnet, author of the novel "The Mudlark," wrote his novel in the same way. He created the main character, the urchin, when he was fighting in New Guinea! His wife got photostat copies of Windsor. Castle, for warded them to him. He read over 70 books for background, but has never visited the British Isles!

MURDER BY CRIPPLED MOUTH ORGAN PLAYER

By CECIL CLARKE
Retired Deputy Commissio

"HE'S been shot twice—and and that's murder."

The speaker was William Moresby, veteran head of the Provincial Police in the New Westminster district, and he made the remark after examining the body of John Marshall, lying sprawled on the verandah of a frame, one-room, shake roof shanty on a bush trail not far from Sumas, Washington, but on the Canadian side of the

"Molly Brown I Love Your Daughter," "Down to Rio," "What Will we Do With a Drunken Salior."

There was a bullet between Marshall's eyes, and another in the back of his neck.

It was two o'clock on the afternoon of April 20, 1893, and the man Moresby addressed was U.S. Marshal Dave Lucas of Sunas, who had crossed the line that norning and guarded the murder seen until Moresby's arrival. A trapper named Jim Airheart had first discovered the crime about daybreak, when he headed past the cabin toward his trap line. Returning hot foot to Huntingdon, he wired to the Provincial Police at

The inn cabin's interior showed no signs of struggle or disorder. A meat meal had been eaten, and an oil lamp still burned on the table. Moresby blew out the light and measured the remaining oil. From all signs the murder had been committed the previous evening

A search of the cabin revealed about $90 in bills secreted under some grain sacks, and in a tea pot were four 20-dollar gold pieces.

The primary examination over, the body was removed to Hunting-don for an inquest.

Discard Pile Dominating

ONCE your side gets control of the discard pile your primary objective is to retain this control throughout a long and pleasant hand. The opponents will try to break this control, and they have three methods at their disposal.

The first method is to med out and end your picnic. You cannot prevent this, but you don't have to help them. The way most people help them. The way most people help them is by taking too many small discard piles once they have established control. This gives the opponents more draws from the stock and more chances to improve as the discard pile is not going to their hands. Remember that as long get away from you there is no hurry about taking it.

The second way they have to break your control is to freeze the pile. If you rush to meld everything possible, your side will be down to a few eards and the opponents will be able to freeze the pile. Thereupon you will not take hand.

Tentative dates are July 2 to August 24 and plans are well under way for another record-breaking attendance this summer, according to man-in-charge W. J. "Bill" Pynn.

"Every district in the city will have a well-equipped playground under supervision of a trained playground worker," says Mr. Pynn, who is still taking applications for supervisors.

Swimming at Crystal Garden . . . tumbling, tennis, folk dancing . . . airplane modelling, leatherwork, toymaking and any activity you care to mention will be on the list, with a course in flower arranging added this year.

First sign of warmer weather and the youngsters are out in droves to try out the jungle jim, whirlabout and tennis courts, as shown at Central Park here.

Other supervised play areas will be: Beacon Hill, Hollywood, Banfield and Stadacona Parks, Oakland, Burnside and James Bay Playgrounds; Eliis Street and Todd Playlots.

Still, there's lots of enjoyment working with the species, he says. He's proud of blossoms he's grown to a size nine inches across, and he adds that some raised by other experts have been 12 inches from tip to tip.

One of the troubles with that type of growth is its tendency to go down hill after the first OF OUR SPRING year. The natural offspring doesn't measure up to its parmeasure up to its par ents. Does that sound familiar? Wonder if a Momma and Poppa Gladiolus worry about the younger generation?

QUARTERLY MEETING

Day Of Pre-School Child Falls In Two Divisions

school children gathered Wed nesday evening at the home of the president, Mrs. W. W. McGill, Tattersal Drive, for quarterly meeting of Vancouver Island Co-operative Play Group Association.

Representatives from many points on the island joined with three city groups to hear Miss Patricia Attwood, supervisor, Victoria Nursery School, speak on "Procedures in Pre-School Education."

Miss Astwood said, "the pre-school child's day fails into two main divisions—routine activity and play activity, both of equal importance for the full development of the child."

Discipline was discussed as a means of guiding the child's learning in relation to the routine learning situations.

DAIRY PRODUCTS MAKE Your FOOD DOLLARS GO FARTHER

Every housewife these days is fighting the "battle of the home budget". She is quite aware that food costs have soured, and was not surprised when the Cost of Living Index at March 1st, last showed food at 244.4 compared with 100 for the base period of 1935-39.

The Dairy Farmers of Canada, faced with rising costs like everyone else, are pleased to draw attention to the fact that Dairy Products in the same index stood at 200.1 while other foods in the index were 247.5. The price of Dairy Products is not at all out of line with other items in the Cost of Living Index, nor with wages in industry. While milk, butter and cheese stand at 200.1, clothing stands at 196.6 and home furnishings at 199.3. Wages based on hourly rates of pay in Canada stood at 226.8 as of Dec. 1, 1950, according to Department of Labour

By using more of Nature's Fine Foods-Dairy Foods-the housewife can ne, nutritious meals and make her food dollar go farther.

Table Display A Highlight

Held in connection with Spring Garden Festival is the annual decorated table display sponsored by Junior Auxiliary to Royal Jubilee Hospital in the Empress Hotel Ballroom on Wednesday afternoon and evening. Here, beautiful china, fine glass, old silver and other objets d'art are combined to create the almost perfect displays. Flowers are used to complete the picture and much originality is to be found in the finished effects. Formal dinners, informal luncheons, buffet and special occasion tables will all find a place in the entries and there is much friendly rivalry between Victoria's hostesses as they arrange their own special displays. A colored national section adds much interest as does the class for floral arrangements, large and small. The decorated table event is held on the first day of the Garden Festival giving visitors to the city an opportunity to attend.

CONFUSION WEEK-Don't forget to set your clocks ahead tonight. Tomorrow daylight saving starts . . . and so do the headaches. We hope you will bear with us for a day or two till we get the program changes ironed out. We have adjusted the schedules to meet information we now have but there are still some programs to hear from.

First off, yesterday we mentioned Jack "Shorty" McCabe's sports program in place of N.H.L. hockey on Saturday night. That, too, has been delayed a week. Instead Imperial Oll is presenting a special program, "Pipeline to the Future," at 6.05 p.m. Tommy Tweed is back poking some good fun like he did in "Man from Number Ten." So take a typical Tweed script and add some imaginative production by Esse Ljungh (pronounced Young), sprinkle with music and top-notch actors, and you've got a show entirely different from any you've ever heard. On CBR. Well worth a listen.

Baseball also calls for some changes. The W.I.L. has canceled the Athletics' night game from Tri-City in favor of an afternoon double-header, on Sunday. As a result CKDA will be carrying the afternoon event starting at 2.05 and in place of the night game, will present a rebroadcast of the ceremonies held at the Royal Roads Graduation exercises on Friday afternoon. Broadcast time, 9.05 p.m.

Tommie Walters Tomorrow the distinguished pianist Artur Rubinstein will be soloist with the New York Philharmonic Symphony heard on KOMO at 10 a.m. and on CBR at 12 noon. And on the program "Symphonette" which follows, the American violinist Joseph Fuchs offers "Intermezzo" from Elgar's "Crown of India" suite. Conductor Piastro will lead the orchestra in excerpts from "H.M.S. Pinafore." This program heard on KOMO only at 11.30 a.m. Later in the evening, Louis Kaufman, outstanding violinist, will artist with Manuel Rosenthal and the Seattle Symphony Orchestra on the "Standard Hour," originating in Seattle. This will be the 1,255 broadcast of radio's oldest hour of music.

Menzies Back:

SYDNEY (CP)-The Coalition government of Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies returned to power in today's Australian parliamentary elections despite gains by the Labor Opposition.

With final figures still to be tallied, Menzies appeared sure of 66 of the 121 seats in the House of Representatives. This com-pares with the 74 the Liberal-Country group won in the last election in December, 1949, when the Coalition wrested power from
